UGL awarded $88 million power systems project

Sydney: UGL Limited (ASX: UGL) (“UGL”) today confirmed it has been awarded the TransGrid Beaconsfield West 330/132kV Substation Upgrade Project, with the contract valued at approximately $88 million.

The project includes rebuilding and expanding the existing Beaconsfield West Substation, a key component of TransGrid’s high voltage network. The Beaconsfield West Substation supplies power to Sydney’s inner metropolitan area and central business district.

UGL Managing Director and CEO, Richard Leupen, said: “These high profile and ongoing successes in our power business support our reputation as one of Australia’s best power system contractors.

“The Beaconsfield West Substation win comes off the back of our significant involvement on the Western 500kV Project – one of TransGrid’s largest capital works projects. We are pleased TransGrid has chosen UGL as its partner of choice on this redevelopment project.”

Mr Leupen added: “UGL’s Infrastructure business continues to experience strong levels of activity and our tendering pipeline is particularly encouraging. Since October 2009, the group has secured over $600 million of new power, water, transport and communications infrastructure projects.”

Project works at the Beaconsfield West Substation Project commenced on 29 April 2010, with completion of the project scheduled for the fourth quarter of 2012.
